James LaFond : Into the Mountains of Madness: Part 1: The Definitive Crackpot Resource (The Dissident Reader 2012-2014) (Volume 1) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Into the Mountains of Madness: Part 1: The Definitive Crackpot Resource (The Dissident Reader 2012-2014) (Volume 1):

What happens when a off the rails science fiction writer and urban violence researcher sifts through the rubble of the American dream in search of the loose brick that brought it all down? 50 essays, including: To Step on Gods Toe, The Secret History of Bitchez, Welcome to Manginastan, The Extinction of Men and The Microeconomics of Wife Beating. If you want to be the person who can change the terms of discussion in such a way as to send doubt, fear and distaste coursing through the veins of your brainwashed friends, family and associates then consider Into the Mountains of Madness as a dinner party primer that could put you too beyond the pale.

About the Author James is a full-time writer, part-time coach and part-time wage slave with an extensive history of brain trauma. He was born in 1963, has been involved in sanctioned and unsanctioned boxing since 1976, and co-founded Modern Agonistics with Chuck Goetz in 1998. Since then he has fought in over 600 stick fights and more than 200 machete duels, and is still able to tie his shoes. In 2012 alone, LaFond managed to write over 140 articles and 10 books; he has lately begun attributing this improbable creative output, as well as his troubling apolitical lack of social commitment, to his supposed extraterrestrial origin.
